License and Gross Receipts Requirements

A drayperson or mover is required to obtain a business license -- $75 for the first location and $25 for each additional location -- which must be renewed annually on or before December 31st of each year. Additionally, a gross receipts tax is levied at the rate of .3983% (.003983) on the amount of income received from the transportation of property within Delaware. Income received from interstate transportation of goods is exempt from the gross receipts tax. The first $100,000 ($300,000 quarterly) of commissions and fees received per month are exempt from the gross receipts tax. Gross Receipt taxes should be filed on-line or with a paper form. Both can be accessed from our website at www.revenue.delaware.gov. To register with the Division of Revenue and obtain a business license, complete a Combined Registration Application, available on the Internet and mail to the Division of Revenue with the appropriate fee or you can file on-line at our OneStop site using the link above.

Special Note for Construction Related Activities

If a drayperson is hired by a general contractor to move dirt, debris, etc. to or from or at the construction of road, bridge, viaduct, sewer, water or gas mains such that the movement of the items results in the alteration of real property, a contractor's business license is required and the gross receipts received from such movement will be subject to tax as a contractor. Please see our "Contractor" tax tips. If the material is carried off the construction site, the drayperson license is appropriate. For example, ABC Company, a drayperson, is hired by XYZ Company, a construction company building a new road, to bring in and unload stone. ABC Company is still considered a drayperson. JKL Company, also a drayperson, is hired by XYZ Company to move and spread the stone from one part of the new road to another. JKL Company would need a contractor's license.

Gross Receipts Tax Exemption

Gross receipts (and for purposes of the tax imposed by Chapter 43, Title 30 of the Delaware Code “rent” and “lease rental payments”) from transactions between related entities are not subject to gross receipts tax. For this purpose, entities are “related” only if (i) the same five or fewer natural individuals own, directly, indirectly or beneficially, 80% or more of each entity, or (ii) 100% of each entity is owned by member or members of a single family. See Section 22120(b) of Title 30 of the Delaware Code for further details, including the definition of “family” for the purposes of this exclusion.

Common Ownership/Direction

A business that operates through more than one branch or legal entity is only entitled to one monthly or quarterly exclusion from gross receipts, if the branches or entities making up the enterprise have common ownership or common direction and control.

Caution Concerning Multiple Exclusions

Nearly all licensees are permitted to reduce their monthly or quarterly gross receipts by certain specific exclusions in determining their taxable gross receipts. The Delaware Code limits the number of allowable exclusions for each general business activity. A taxpayer conducting a business activity for which an exclusion is provided is entitled to ONLY ONE monthly or quarterly exclusion regardless of the number of locations at which such activity is conducted. For example, a taxpayer who operates multiple beauty shops should aggregate the receipts from all services provided at all locations and subtract only one monthly exclusion. Separate retail licenses are not required for the sale of food and petroleum products. While the Division of Revenue may assign a unique business code which reflects the primary service sold, the service provider may sell multiple services without obtaining a separate license for each product line. However, separate licenses are required and separate exclusions are permitted if a taxpayer conducts more than one ACTIVITY, such as providing a service and retailing or wholesaling.

Regulatory and Local Requirements

The Business License Issued by the Division of Revenue is not a regulatory license and the issuance of such license does not attest to the qualifications of the applicant to perform the activity described on such license. Many local jurisdictions have requirements for a business license and may have restrictions concerning the locations of conducting the referenced business activity. Please check with the local government office in the town, city or county in which you will conduct your business.

The State of Delaware also has a Division of Professional Regulations. Many occupations and some types of equipment have regulatory requirements. Please contact the Division of Professional Regulation for more information.
